Nearly 3,000 former customers of F&S Oil will receive $1 million in restitution checks for oil or services owed when the company closed in March 2008, state Attorney General Richard Blumenthal announced Wednesday.

The checks are expected to reach customers of the Waterbury-based company over the next week, Blumenthal said.

The Attorney General's office is continuing its investigation into the collapse of the company, and it is seeking additional assets for restitution, Blumenthal said.

The 2,927 F&S customers are receiving a portion of the money owed to them by the company because of limited resources and claims by other creditors.
